9: a

The cases and their sectors are derived from legally required public notices about insolvency proceedings. Annual reports relate only to the size criterion, while industry associations are not the documentary basis.

10: a

The text describes the increase as the continuation of an existing upward trend, not as a decline or a change beginning only at the end of the period.

11: b

Although retail and construction cases are mentioned, the strongest concentration is located in the business network surrounding vehicle production.

12: a

Publication delays mean that very recent deterioration may become visible only in a later analysis. The text does not restrict the data to completed proceedings or describe a multi-year classification cycle.

13: a

The classification uses the company's most recently published annual revenue rather than workforce size or creditor claims.

14: a

The article links the sector's difficulties to simultaneous transformation costs and weak demand.

15: a

The article explains the wider effects through the company's direct relationships with workers, suppliers and locations.
